TAPMENT TO MOLOTOV ON MAY 1:

"Two years ago, during my initial conversation with gossible my estimate of the inevitable reaction of the American people to the continuance of a policy by the Soviet Government which would appear to have as its purpose the progressive extension of the area of Soviet power. At that time, I pointed out that it would be a grave misinterpreta. progressive extension of the area of Soviet power. At that time, I pointed out that it would be a grave misinterpretation of the fundamentally pacific character of the American people to believe that they would not react strongly and vigorously to the progressive domination by one country of its neighbors and the clear threat to the world community which such actions would imply.

如 emphasized at that time that the United States had no desire whatewar to see the world divided into two major groupings, nor to divert a large part of its income to the maintenance of a military establishment which such a world situation would necessitate in elementary self-defense. It seemed apparent then that such a line of policy as that described would lead inevitably to a crystallization of the non-Soviet areas of the world, whose people would quite understandably feel themselves progressively threatened by such developments. It seemed also inevitable in such a case that the United States, as the strongest nation in this length of the states, as the strongest nation in this length of the world and in vivert area portion of its energy, which by the forced to take a leading part in this large portion of its energy, which by the forced to take a leading part in this large portion of its energy, which by the forced to take a leading part in this large portion of its energy, which have the sorder and part of the world and the control of the major game to the strongest nation in this large portion of its energy, which have the control of the energy and the control of the energy and the control of the party U.S. Presidential candidate, was widely published in U.S. paent a vert arge portion of its energy, which by p ference cople could prefer to utilize for assis.
